

WISCONSIN SAFE. REPORT LEADERS

REPUBLICAN TICKET ASSURED
SUCCESS TOMORROW
AT POLLS.

M'GOVERN PLURALITY GOOD

General Review of the Situation in Other States Where Vote May Be Close.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 7.—Wisconsin republicans seem practically sure of the election of their whole ticket, legislature and eight congressmen.
The democrats will carry the sixth congressional district while the social democrats and two old parties are fighting for the fourth and fifth districts in Milwaukee.

Bancroft's Vote.

From many localities in the state it is reported that Bancroft will receive the support of thousands of voters who may otherwise vote for the democratic state ticket. His election by a small plurality is anticipated. It is almost certain he will carry Milwaukee and Milwaukee counties. Reports this morning indicate that Coclaine, republican, will defeat Burger, social democrat, and Carney, democrat, in the fifth congressional district. Cary's re-election in the fourth is assured.
It is anticipated that the vote will be tight throughout the state owing to the fact that the democrats have no county ticket except by independent nomination in thirty-four counties.

Esaman's Views.

In a statement made public today
by William E. L. Esaman, secretary of the republican state central committee, Esaman claims the election of Francis B. McGovern as governor of Wisconsin with a plurality of 60, 000 votes. The announcement also carries the statement that McGovern will carry with him the entire republican ticket, including Charles H.
Grawhart, of Superior, independent candidate for attorney general. Crow-hart's plurality will be a handsome one, says Esaman.

Casson's Views.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 7.—Col. Henry Casson, sergeant at arms of the United States senate and secretary of the republican national congressional committee, said today regarding tomorrow's election prospects:
"I think the next house of representatives will be republican and have hopes that the majority will be large enough to insure effective work."

Illinois Close.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—The campaign in this state will close tonight with the final meeting of the principal cities and towns and the roundups of the party workers. In some congressional districts in Chicago the situation is such that both sides claim victory.

In Iowa.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 7.—A close vote is expected in Iowa tomorrow.
Both parties make sweeping claims,
the factional strife in republican ranks having lent the greatest confidence to the democrats. It is believed the vote will be tight.

Hard Battle.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 7.—A battle to the last hour of the campaign for the big "silent" vote, which both republican and democratic admit will decide whether Beveridge or Kern will be the next United States senator from Indiana are planned here today.

Hopes for Victory.

New York, Nov. 7.—In a telegram to republican leaders this afternoon, President Taft expressed his sincere desire for a republican victory in New York.

Roosevelt began his final effort in behalf of the republican state ticket by a whirlwind tour of this city which will not end until midnight.

Both Claim Victory.

Milwaukee, Nov. 7.—Negotiable notes to the amount of $30,000 were stolen from an iron box in the unlocked safe of the Lisbon Store company last night by burglars. A peculiar feature of the robbery as it is reported to the police today is that $700 in cash in the same box with the notes, was left untouched. It is said part of the stolen notes, amounting to about $1,000 were due tomorrow.
They were all payable to the Lisbon store company. The police have an

SUFFRAGISTS HOPE TO EXTEND AREA

Election Returns from Oklahoma, S.
Dakota, and Oregon Will Be Eagerly Awaited.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Nov. 7.—At the headquarters of the National Woman Suffrage Association in this city arrangements have been made to receive early returns from the four states in which a vote is to be taken tomorrow on the question of granting women the ballot. The four states are Oklahoma, Washington, South Dakota and Oregon. The first three named will be taken on a pre-proposed amendment to the constitution granting to all taxpayers, regardless of sex, the right of suffrage.
Should the four states vote in the affirmative, there will be a cause for great jubilation among the advocates for equal rights, for it will mean a one-hundred per cent increase in the woman suffrage territory. In four states women now possess suffrage upon equal terms with men at all elections. These states and the dates when they established equal suffrage are as follows: Wyoming, established in 1893;
Colorado, in 1893; Utah, in 1896, and Idaho, in 1896.

FOR REJUVENATION OF COUNTRY LIFE

Jefferson County, Kentucky, May Appropriate $500,000 for Consolidated Rural Schools.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Louisville, Ky., Nov. 7.—Of considerable interest to the country at large, as pointing the way to a possible solution of the "country-life problem," will be the results of the special election in Jefferson County tomorrow on a proposed $500,000 bond issue for a modern system of rural schools. If the proposal is adopted the proceeds of the bond issue will be used to supplant the small district schools with a consolidated chain of rural schools, which, it is believed, will accomplish great results in the rejuvenation of country life. It is the first time that such a plan has been taken up on a large scale and its success will be watched by the country at large.

MORMON ISSUE IN UTAH

Will Play Important Part at Polls—
Great Battle in the Keystone State
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 7.—Interest in tomorrow's election in Utah centers chiefly in the fight to control the legislature, which will elect a successor to United States Senator Sutherland. Senator Sutherland, who is a Republican, is a candidate for re-election. The Republicans assert that they will have the legislature overwhelmingly, but the opposition believes there will be enough votes against the Republicans to prevent Sutherland's return. The American Party, which is hostile to Mormon Church interference in politics, is expected to play an important part in the election. The party is particularly strong in this city and counts upon electing its legislative candidates. It is therefore regarded as possible that a combination of the Democrats and Republicanism
the Democrats and the American Party might break the Republican control in the next legislature.

Going Home to Vote.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—Trains leaving Washington today carried hundreds of officials and Government clerks who will vote tomorrow at their respective homes. The departments have been emptying themselves of voters for several days and by noon today the forces in all the big Government buildings were reduced to a rather low ebb. The Government service, however, is not allowed to suffer by the exodus of voters, as the department heads always prepare for the lack of workers at election time by getting the routine work well in hand and in such condition that a reduced number of employees can handle it.

President Taft leaves tonight for Cincinnati, where he will cast his ballot tomorrow. All of the cabinet officers are following the example of their chief in returning to their respective homes to vote. Some of the department heads and other officials who came from the same states have arranged to save the expense and trouble of going home by pairing with men of opposite party. This plan has been steadily increasing in favor since free railroad transportation was abolished several years ago.

Triangular Fight in Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—In one of the most important elections in years Pennsylvania is to have the first real test of its independent reform sentiment tomorrow when in a three-cornered contest for the governor-ship, the non-partisan Keystone Party will oppose both the old party machines at the polls. It is the first time that a strictly non-partisan movement, composed of insurgent Republicans and Independent Democrats, has been carried out in the state, backing a ticket in the selection of which the partisan affiliations of candidates was a secondary consideration.

The choice of the Keystone Party for governor is ex-State Treasurer William H. Berry, the man who exposed the State Capitol frauds. The Republican gubernatorial candidate is Congressman John K. Tener of the twenty-fourth district, while the Democratic ticket is headed by Webster Grinn, a member of the State senate. In addition to the three leading tickets candidates for State offices have been named by the Prohibitionists, Socialists, Workmen's League and Industrial Parties.

Saloon Contest Bitter.

St. Louis, Nov. 7.—Missouri goes tomorrow to the hottest test which has been made up to date in the state between the liquor interests and the anti-saloon forces. After months of agitation and hard fighting the anti-saloon organizations succeeded in securing the submission to popular vote of a constitutional amendment providing for state-wide prohibition.
The fate of this measure will be determined at the polls tomorrow.

St. Louis, the metropolis of the state and the fourth largest city in the country, views the possibility of becoming a "dry" town with a feeling approaching consternation. The city is one of the largest centers of the brewing industry in the United States. But it is not the brewery interests alone that are displaying alarm over the menace of prohibition. The business interests in general are violently opposed to the proposal, believing that the general prosperity and welfare of the city would be seriously affected by the adoption of prohibition.

The fight against the measure in this city has been conducted under the direction of a committee of fifty, calling itself "Citizens' Defense Committee." The members of it represent the industrial, commercial, educational and professional interests of the city, but none is connected with the manufacture or sale of liquor.

Similar campaigns have been conducted in Kansas City, St. Joseph and elsewhere throughout Missouri.
The anti-saloon forces also have been waging an active fight and their leaders expressed the belief that the proposed constitutional amendment will be carried despite the bitter opposition with which it has met.

No deer or part of a carcass of a deer can be shipped, but must be accompanied by the hunter, with coupon section "D" of his license attached to it. If a non-resident, sections B and C are to be attached to the carcass or part of the deer.

Any carcass or part of a carcass of any deer had in possession in or near any hunting camp or found in transit without said coupon attached may be seized and sold by any warden according to the law.

Must Notify Warden.
By serving written notice on the state game warden or deputy warden on or before the last day of the open season for killing deer, a hunter may keep and consume the meat of the deer, lawfully killed by him, in his own family. The notice shall state as near as possible when and where said deer was killed, and the number of pounds of venison then in his possession.

It is unlawful to ship the green (fresh) hides or green heads of deer after the third day of January.

According to the reports received at the office of the state game warden, deer are plentiful this year.

THE GOLDEN GIRL ON RETURN VISIT

Attracted Good Sized Audiences to the Myers Theatre on Saturday and Seemed to Please.

Good sized audiences greeted "The Golden Girl," a characteristic though Adams-Howard symposium of musical froth and comedy, upon its return visit to the Myers theatre Saturday. The dream tableaux introducing the shades of Martha Cullum and the ancient war-time wooders, General Varney and General Carroll, the Pocahontas and Capt. John Smith moving picture Indiana, Jefferson Carter's ancestors, the Champagne Festival, and the Shower of Gold, were admirably presented and as nothing very interesting had been transpiring before their advent, were capital interruptions. Jackson Barry captured many laughs with his eccentric character portrayal of Capt. Carter, the pirate. Lionel Lawrence was good as General Varney and Harry Joyner was acceptable as General Carroll, the Confederate veteran. Leona Watson sang very sweetly and Adelle Dougherty was good as "Dorothy Hink"—the West Point "college widow." "The Land of the Dead to Me," "I Can't Love Everybody," "I Think I Hear a Woodpecker Knocking on My Family Tree," and "The Indian Love Song" were some of the musical hits. Zeke Colvin was the hard luck cadet. Jefferson Carter, who has all the strange adventures and finally meets the suave cadet Capt. Pike (Al McGarry) in the love affair. Oliver Horner, Opal Scott, Earl Mountain, and H. C. Hall won applause with their dance. The musical ensembles were good and the piece was well mounted.

Wins Set of Dishes

Gus Paul, who lives 3 miles west of Janeville, won the set of dishes at the Great Furniture Sale of Frank D. Kimball. The dishes were given away Saturday, Oct. 29th. Another set was given away Saturday, Nov. 5th, No. 199 being the lucky number. Next Saturday still another set will be given away to some patron of the sale. Kimball's great furniture sale of sets remarkably low prices and is one of the greatest sales Janeville has ever held. Frank D. Kimball, 22-21 W. Milwaukee St.

LYDIA KINSLEY TO BE NEW LIBRARIAN

Successor to Miss Skavlem Chosen at an Adjourned Meeting of the Board Saturday Night.

At an adjourned meeting Saturday evening the Janeville library board elected Miss Lydia E. Kinsley, who was recommended by the Wisconsin Free Library commission, as librarian to succeed Miss Gertrude Skavlem, resigned. Miss Kinsley is a graduate of the Wisconsin library school, class of 1906. She studied at the University of Michigan; was assistant librarian at Marquette, Mich.; assistant librarian at Marquette at the state normal school at Warrensburg, Mo., for three years; studied library work in Europe last summer and since her return has been engaged in organizing and cataloging work for the proposed physical sciences central library in Chicago. She hopes to assume her new duties here about Dec. 1. In the meantime the work will be carried on by Mrs. Best, Miss Luckmaster, and Miss Mary Luckmaster, special assistant. Miss Kinsley is a cousin of Mrs. C. V. Kersch and has visited in Janeville on several occasions. She appeared before the board Saturday night. While the loss of Miss Skavlem is keenly regretted by every member and all patrons of the library, as well, it is believed that Janeville is very fortunate in securing the services of one who comes so highly recommended as the new librarian.

ELECTION DAY.

Tomorrow is election day, and every man owes it to himself to exercise the sacred right of franchise according to the dictates of conscience and his own best judgment.

The Gazette has not been enthusiastic during the campaign, for the simple reason that it could not endorse the action of the state central committee in repudiating one of the candidates for state office and substituting an independent candidate.

The office, like every other newspaper office in the state, has been flooded with campaign literature, for a month, but almost every paragraph has been a plea for the independent candidate, and defense for the action of the state central committee.

The state ticket from top to bottom, including Levi H. Bancroft, is a good ticket, and but for the persistent effort to defeat Mr. Bancroft would have commanded the loyal support of the republicans throughout the state.

The conservative wing of the party recognized the fact that primary election day that it was in the minority, and while disappointed, these lifelong republicans were prepared to submit gracefully to the will of the majority, but when there was injected into the campaign a personal issue as the most prominent feature, there was no incentive for enthusiasm.

The ticket as it appears at the head of these columns should be elected, because it is a republican ticket. If this is done it will not only insure the continuance of a republican administration, but it will also rebuke the little handful of men who have attempted to dictate in the interests of personal politics.

THE POSTAL DEFICIT.

The postal deficit is again under discussion, attributed by Postmaster General Hitchcock, who, like every other new secretary of this portfolio, aspires to make a record for economy. The latest proposition, which is said to have the endorsement of President Taft, is to ask congress to pass a bill requiring magazine publishers to pay an extra rate for their advertising pages.

The plan contemplates a bureau at Washington for the purpose of dissecting all magazines, before they are sent out, weighing up the reading matter and advertising pages separately, and subjecting the latter to an advanced rate which shall somewhere near represent cost of transportation to the government.

This of course will be fought by magazine publishers who claim that the advertising pages create a heavy demand for stamps, on the part of the reading public. This, however, is the only argument worth considering, and it will not have much weight, as advertising is the principal source of revenue to the publisher, and he will find a way to distribute it without government aid if necessary.

The magazine is not a news distributor, and the date of publication is so flexible that it can be applied to any emergency. The Saturday Evening Post is distributed simultaneously to all parts of the country and twenty-five per cent of its circulation goes out to news centers by express because the rate is cheaper, than the present government rate. It would be possible for all publishers of magazines to deliver the bulk of their product in the same way, and this of course will be done if the government rate is too high.

The average magazine haul is 1,100 miles and the service rendered as a common carrier is the best mail service.

There is no reason why this class of publications should not pay the same rate for distributing advertising matter that they would be obliged to pay a private corporation for the same service.

The postal service is maintained by a direct tax on the people, and they should not be asked to contribute for the benefit of a small class of publishers, whose product is largely an advertising product.

The country is surfeited with magazines and every last one of them ought to be ailing a long time, but many of them could be weeded out with no loss to a long-suffering public.

They pose as organs of high literary attainment, but they are the disseminators of a lot of dangerous doctrines, and create more unrest among intelligent people than the yellow journals do among the masses.

They are no more entitled to special privileges in the mail service than are public servants to a frank, which permits them to deaden everything from a letter to a carload of furniture. There are several leaks in the departments at Washington, which need plugging up.

Public sentiment is divided as to the merits of the garment workers' strike in Chicago. If the "open shop" was the only issue, as the employers claim, there would be little cause for sympathy, but the whole question of the "sweat shop" system is involved, and many of the methods employed have long been a disgrace to civilization. Organized labor is attempting to regulate some of these evils by standing together. The manufacturers are responsible for conditions and are suffering in consequence.

Vote "yes" on the bridge question, and lend a hand for a better and more attractive city. The spirit of enterprise is in the air and entitled to every encouragement. The city has plenty of room to grow and only needs a start. The advent of one now factory employing hundreds of skilled workmen, means a dozen more in half a dozen years. It is a good time to be a booster, don't you think?

The last issue of Bryan's Commoner, before election, is filled with Roosevelt, and almost every paragraph is a criticism. The colonel has a faculty of keeping people guessing and his best friends never know just what he will do next. He is practically the only issue in the New York election, and if he wins, the victory will be very significant.

President Taft has maintained a dignified, quiet throughout the campaign. If "undesirable citizens" have annoyed him he has been wise enough to refrain from comment. When the people recover from their frenzy and settle down to a sobering mood, after election, they will discover a full-fledged President in command.

Weather predictions are not always reliable and election forecasts are equally uncertain. The day after tells the story of the storm and Wednesday will decide where the nation is to vote straight and keep sober.

The election tomorrow may not be a landslide, but there will be so many handshakes in the race, that general approval may result. Our next house of representatives is likely to be democratic with the senate playing a close second.

Colonel Roosevelt has assigned so many men to the Amateur club during the campaign that he is likely to be busy with libel suits for some time to come.

The way to insure the election of Judge Levi H. Bancroft is to vote the straight republican ticket, and this is what every republican should do tomorrow.

Senator Cummings of Iowa seems to have dropped out of sight completely since his Chicago speech.

The split ticket and support of an independent candidate means disloyalty.

The next governor of New York will be a good man, whichever party wins.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE BOOZE FIGHTER.

Watch him—

There he goes, clothes shiny at the seams, unlaced hat and shoes, slovenly, furtive. He slips into the side door of the saloon.

What happens there? You can fancy. The bartender knows him. He pushes a bottle of "all sorts"—cheap whiskey—over the counter. With trembling hand the booze fighter pours out "three fingers."

It goes down hard. He tries a time or two to lift it, his stomach protesting, and finally takes it in both hands. Once down there is a long convulsive shudder, and he gasps for a very little water for a "chaser."

Inside of three minutes he is out of the saloon.

Looking about him, he shuffles down the street, his hat slouched over his face, his coat tightly buttoned, and his arms close to his side as if in deprecation of the world—until the "bracer," having given the desired shock to his heart muscles, sends out the poisoned blood to the extremities. Then he straightens up.

He is another man now. Unbuttoning his coat, he puts his hat on the back of his head, his thumbs into his vest and smiles. Life is good again. And the booze fighter begins to dream his dreams of reform, of domestic happiness, of business prosperity, of peace and plenty. But—

His business is gone. His friends are gone. His vitality is gone.

The whiskey that is in him gives him a brief, false sense of strength, and he brags, his protestations about "bracing up" and being a man. This until the force of the drink is spent.

What is the matter? The man is poisoned! If the modern laboratory reveals anything for sure it reveals the fact that in whatever shape, always and everywhere, alcohol is a poison.

It does not, cannot produce strength of body or mind—only apparent, seeming strength. And its reactions are deadly.

The man is poisoned. Under the specious plea of being able to drink or let alone he has deliberately, systematically, poisoned himself. And each continued dose of poison gives cumulative force.

"I'll take the cure."

Poor sodden brain—that is its last resort. But suppose the alcohol poison really is eliminated from the blood? Suppose the awful craving has been taken temporarily away? Only the shell of body and soul is left and then—

What of the vitiated will power? And who will give back youth, vitality, friends, business ability?

(Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams.)

O squash rich and mellow, with insides of yellow, just flat while I sing a few lines; a product that's greater, from beet to potato, ne'er grew on a husbandman's vine!

A Hubbard squash dinner is always a winner, a solace, a balm and a boon; it cheers and refreshes and breaks up the meshes of sorrow, and brightens the noon. You snap on some butter and then you can't utter the gladness pervading your breast; you swallow with vigor the three sizes bigger, and then you button your vest. What was it invented the large, pleasant-scented and life-saving squash we adore? Let's crown him with laurel and bay-leaves and sorrow, and let us inveigle the national eagle to come from his perch (he's absurd!) and put up the Hubbard where long he has rubbered, and make it the national bird!

Credit One More to the Hen. The scratching of an industrious hen under the porch of the house of William M. Skinner of Lakewood, N. J., recently brought to light some thousands of dollars' worth of jewelry stolen from the Skinner residence last April. It is thought the thief was afraid to attempt the sale of the jewelry for fear of apprehension and hid the loot under the porch.

Pen and Paper. "Paper," whether of rags or of wood pulp, still takes its name from the papyrus. "A book" is the beech, the wooden rod on which our forefathers cut their runic letters. And a "pen" is still by derivation "penniculus," a little tail, having been originally the name of the Roman painter's brush.

Tragedy Narrowly Averted.

An alarming subsidence took place at Cleland, Lanarkshire, Scotland, caused by the giving way of an old pit shaft. The subsidence occurred under a house and a large cavity was caused at the back door. When the woman of the house, with a child in her arms, made to come out she nearly stepped into a hole ten feet deep. She retained her hold on the door handle, however, and dragged herself back.

Luxurious Bath Robe. A new electrically heated bath or lounging robe has been invented, consisting of a hamper, a cradle, a pair of slippers, a cradle, a cradle, and an arm, all of which are made in the country. There is no need of fire, as the workman beats the shoe into shape cold.

No Demand. The Japanese rip their garments apart for every washing, and they iron their clothes by spreading them on a flat board and leaving this up against the house to dry. The sun takes the wrinkles out of the clothes and some of them have quite a tuster. The Japanese woman does her washing out of doors. Her wash tub is not more than six inches high.

Needle Caused Death.

The mysterious death of a child at Rotherhithe, England, was explained in a peculiar way at a recent inquest. A doctor said that in some unexplained way a needle had penetrated the baby's chest, and the beating of the heart against its point caused death from hemorrhage.

DENTAL TRUTH

Unless the food is properly masticated, and is finely chewed and well mixed with the saliva, it enters the stomach in a condition unfit for digestion.

As a consequence, the digestive organs are overworked, and the body is not supplied with proper nourishment. How important it is, therefore, to take proper care of the mouth and teeth.

From an artistic standpoint, no face is so beautiful but that bad teeth will mar it, nor is any face so homely that well-preserved teeth will not lend an aspect of refinement.

Better let me look over your mouth, and supply your Dental needs.

IF BRIDGES WIN BY FAIR MARGIN

THERE WILL BE NO TROUBLE ABOUT BOND ISSUES AND SALE.

SAYS JAMES A. FATHERS

Questions Call For Levy of Special Tax But There is no Intention of Collecting It in Lump.

Some people who naturally would not care to pay their proportion of the cost of two new bridges all in one year are still dubious about the propositions which will be submitted to the voters tomorrow, though City Attorney Maxfield has held that bonds may be levied for both the Fourth and Racine street structures. City Treasurer James Fathers is also confident that such issues can be sold without difficulty if the voters show by good substantial majorities in each instance that they want the bridges built. He hopes that both will win, if either does, because in that event there would be a likelihood of some of the disappointed ones starting a wrangle by way of reparation.

From one point of view the city charter, in its obscure way, seems to require that funds for building new bridges be raised only by special tax and that provision, indeed, is incorporated in the questions as they will be submitted to the voters. There is no intention in any quarter, however, of levying a $12,000 tax to be collected in one lump in event the propositions carry. That would be much too much of a good thing. Nobody sanctions it and because of this very fact the charter, under the interpretation above cited, would practically make all bridge-building prohibitive—forever.

The bridges, if built, will be of the same type of concrete and steel structures as the one at Court street, but not as wide. The same stipulation in the questions are based on estimates furnished by Mr. Jackson of the St. Louis Bridge Co. Without flinching in the estimate at either end he fixed the cost of the one wanted at Fourth avenue at $24,000 and of the one proposed for Racine street at $16,000. The sum of $1,000 was added to each amount in order to fully cover all possible outlay.

TOPICS FOR DEBATE HAVE BEEN RECEIVED

Public Speaking Department of Beloit College Has Sent Out Topics for Intercollegiate Debates.

Professor Crawford of the department of public speaking at Beloit college has sent out a list of five subjects one of which is to be selected for the intercollegiate debate between the high schools of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin. The Illinois contestants will probably be Rockford, Aurora, Elgin and Freeport. Beloit and Janesville and possibly two other schools from this state will be chosen to compete for the cup which is awarded the winners.

Each school is asked to state which of the questions they prefer, and from that date the question for the debates will be determined. The subjects are current topics of general interest such as the conservation of national resources, and the immigration problem. The team which will represent Janesville will meet Beloit some time the fore part of the winter and the successful contestants of the two states will meet at Beloit on intercollegiate day next spring to decide the championship.

As soon as the topic is decided upon the members of the local high school literary societies, the Rusk Lyceum and the Forum, will get to work and teams will be selected from which those who represent the school will be chosen. The Janesville boys have shown up well in these debates in previous years and prospects are bright for a successful team this season.

ELECTION RETURNS FLASHED ON SCREEN

Results of Tomorrow's Election Will Be Displayed at the Gazette Office.

Through special arrangements with the United Press, the Gazette will on Tuesday night receive the returns from the election all over the country. As there is particular interest in the elections in New York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa and the democrats are promising wonderful results in Wisconsin, they should prove interesting to the general public. In order to meet this demand the Gazette will flash the results as fast as received on a large screen placed opposite the office on Milwaukee street. Arrangements have also been made to receive the complete county returns as fast as counted so that before midnight the general trend of the election should be known not only in Wisconsin but the country over. As a good portion of this report comes to the Gazette over the telephone the public is asked not to hinder the work of compiling the results by calling up the office and asking for the vote. The figures will be published on Wednesday in the Gazette complete and will also be placed on the canvas for the benefit of the public on Tuesday night.

Complainant Would Not Appear: On complaint of Mrs. Wallace Skinner, residing east of town, who alleged that they insulted her, William McGee and Peter Tubbs were locked up in the city jail over Sunday. This morning Mrs. Skinner refused to appear against them, stating that she had been more concerned in their abuse of the horse they were driving than in what they said to her.

E. R. WINSLOWPATRICK JOYCE DIES OF INJURY

FELL FROM LADDER THIS MORNING AND NEVER REGAINED CONSCIOUSNESS.

WAS FORMERLY ALDERMAN

From the Fourth Ward and For A Number of Years Had Charge of Northwestern Railroad Shops As Foreman.

Patrick T. Joyce, a well known and highly respected citizen of this city, died suddenly at his home at 411 Lincoln street at 1:20 o'clock this afternoon of injuries received while trimming a trolley in his yard this morning. The accident which resulted in his death occurred about 10:45. Mr. Joyce, who was very active for a man of his years, was saving some of the limbs from the tree when the tree fell and the extension ladder, on which he was standing, broke. He was thrown to the ground, striking on his head and shoulders. The shock of the fall rendered him unconscious and his left arm was broken. Dr. Fred Sutherland was hurriedly summoned and all possible efforts were made to save the injured man's life, but he never regained consciousness. The accident was seventy-seven years of age and was a native of Limerick, Ireland. He was one of the oldest residents of the city, having made his home here for over fifty years. He had also served the city at one time as alderman from the Fourth Ward and was for a number of years foreman at the Northwestern railroad shops here.

The funeral will be given later.

Mrs. Jane Connell.

The funeral of Mrs. Jane Connell was held at nine o'clock this morning from St. Mary's church. The services, at which many sorrowing relatives and friends were present, were conducted by Rev. Fr. Wm. A. Gobel.

Beautiful floral offerings covered the casket of the deceased. The pallbearers: Michael McCue, Peter McCue, Thomas Smith, and Thomas McKinnon. The remains were laid at rest in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

THE NORTH POLE NOT REACHED?

EXPLORER RASMUSSEN ASSERTS CLAIMS OF COOK AND PEARY ARE FALSE.

SENDS HOME SECRET REPORT

Interviews with Eskimos, Dane Declares, Substantiate His Opinion That No Living Person Has Penetrated Northernmost Arctic Region.

Copenhagen, Nov. 7.—"No living explorer or Eskimo has ever reached the north pole and the claims of Peary and Cook have not a shadow of truth to sustain them."

No living explorer or Eskimo has been within hundreds of miles of the north pole.

This is the startling conclusion reached by Knud Rasmussen, an missionary to Greenland, who has returned here. The missionary, who is deemed religious and reliable, says too that they bring details of Rasmussen's cross-examination of the two Eskimos, Ahwah and Eturlik, upon whose testimony Doctor Cook relied for corroboration of his claim that he reached the north pole.

Pole Still Unconquered.

After closely questioning these two and other Eskimos, Rasmussen is absolutely certain that the pole is still unconquered. Rasmussen, an experienced Arctic explorer, is the Danish Inspector of Greenland. His mother was an Eskimo, his father a Dane. Whatever Rasmussen says about Arctic exploration is accepted with the greatest faith here. He was a partisan of Doctor Cook at one time. So, if the missionaries quote him correctly, his report will reopen the entire polar controversy.

Sends Home Secret Report.

A telegram from the Copenhagen correspondent to the London Daily News states that the ship which took Rasmussen to Cape York last summer has returned to Copenhagen. Her captain brings a secret report to a friend of Rasmussen concerning Doctor Cook's Eskimos, whom Rasmussen interviewed. The captain says the report will "explain" the whole Cook affair. Its publication depends on Rasmussen's friend, who is not in Copenhagen at the moment.

U. S. ENVOY CALLS ON SULTAN.

Ambassador Wilson is Received in Audience by Turkish Monarch.

Later Mr. Wilson and his party were entertained at dinner by the sultan.

HUSBAND'S CRY BRINGS DYING WOMAN TO LIFE

Pronounced Dead by Hospital Attendants She Kicked Family and Then Passes Away.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 7.—The wild cry of her husband brought Mrs. John Finley, who had been pronounced dead by the attendants at the Allegheny General hospital, back to life. She called each of her seven children by name, kissed each of them good-bye and died three hours later.

Mrs. Finley, who was the mother of seven children, was badly injured some days since, while moving some furniture and was taken to the hospital. Shortly after noon she took a sinking spell and in a few minutes lay seemingly dead. She was pronounced dead by the hospital attendants, and a hurried call was sent for the husband and children that the mother was dead. Finley and his family came rushing to the hospital and at sight of his wife lying so still and white he burst into a loud cry, calling by name to come to him. The woman was seen to move and as the nurse in horror stepped back she opened her eyes and smiled at her husband and little ones who crowded around the bed.

The woman so miraculously checked on the brink of the grave told her family that she was dying quickly and to each one gave a message and soon lapsed into unconsciousness from which she could not again be roused.

Home Course In Tree Preservation

By JOHN DAVEY, Father of Tree Surgery.

I.—Keeping Trees Healthy.

(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

IN Scripture we read of "the tree of the Lord," and, lo, one of them is here before you, caught by the camera. (See illustration No. 1.) What an embodiment of innocent loveliness! How "fearfully and wonderfully made!" What a friend of man! How it has stood and wrestled with the storms! There it stands a living tree—aye, a noble creature! Hold those plumelike branches! No two branches alike, no two twigs the same and no two leaves of exactly the same pattern. Lift the graceful branchlet reverently; thoughtfully pluck a leaf; study that wonderful organ; examine its petiole (the leaf stalk).

Under the microscope the protoplasmic cells are seen to be constructed with just as much inherent intelligence as in the hand or any part of the human body. The petiole, for example, instead of being made of overlapping cells, is made up of spiral cells much like the wire coil spring that pulls the screen door shut. Then trace out the veins, vessels and voluities and see how wonderful it is all filled in with the parenchyma, and then with the microscope look upon that strange but beautiful arrangement for breathing, the stomata.

The tree that we talk about—that is, the part that we see, consisting of trunk, branches and leaves—is in reality not the important part. This is the visible portion, of course, and is beautiful or otherwise according to the condition of the invisible parts, the roots.

There are just three places where we find healthy trees—first, in the natural woodlands; second, in the open, cultivated field. That is where this beautiful rock maple is situated. Note the furrows, as the recent plowing has been done, and, third, in the graveyard, or cemetery, where the roots feed on the human bodies. In the natural woodland there is root protection from the mulching given by the decaying leaves. Through this mulching the air and water both penetrate and feed the roots and keep them active. In the cultivated field the same takes place by means of the farmer's constant plowing, cultivating and stirring the soil, and in the cemetery the digging of graves and burial of bodies stir the soil and furnish the food supply from the bodies that are interred.

To me this is a pleasant thought, that this body shall "rise again" and live as a shelter for the dear birds. From these three lessons and a few others incidentally we have one of the most important lessons in tree growing—namely, the top of your tree, or the visible portions, can be no better than the invisible parts, the roots.

This fact is presented to you whenever you go and is exemplified by illustration No. 2. This is from a photograph taken July 3. No. 1 was taken the 4th of the same month.

The cause of the destruction of those in No. 2 was the formation of a heavy sod over their roots. Unpleasant as it is, we must recognize the fact that we cannot have a good tree and a good sod at the same time. There are artificial ways of compromising attitudes, but the simplest way is to throw a rope around the tree and draw a circle, destroy all sod inside the line and keep cultivating and give plenty of water during the hot months of July and August. The circle may be a foot from the trunk for small trees out to as far as six feet in large ones.

On arrival at Portsmouth the duke was received by a guard of honor and the naval commander-in-chief, Sir A. D. Curzon Howe. The mayor and the flag and general officers having been presented to their royal highnesses, an address was presented by the town clerk, to which the duke replied in the following words: "I am very pleased to see the corporation of Portsmouth here today, and I recognize many old faces whom I remember when I was here as lieutenant governor. I am fully sensible of the great importance of the mission I am undertaking, and I shall leave no effort undone to promote, on behalf of his majesty, the unity of South Africa and of the empire."

This, then, is the first scene in what may well be described as one of the most important episodes in the history of the British empire.

The first stop after leaving Portsmouth was the island of St. Helena, which they reached on the 24th. The journey then continued to Cape Town. From this point the royal party will proceed to Bloemfontein, arriving November 9. Livingston will be reached on November 12, after a visit has been paid to the Victoria Falls, thence the journey will be continued to Salisbury, Bulawayo, Gaborone, Potchefstroom, Pretoria, Johannesburg, Pietermaritzburg and Durban, whence they will sail for England on December 3.

Tells How to Make a Pint of

Laxative Cough Syrup

Very Cheaply at Home.

The reason that most all cough syrups are ineffective, is that the ordinary preparations are very constipating and after a while they aggravate the condition and bring on fever and pneumonia. To avoid pneumonia the bowels should be laxative and the cough will soon be overcome.

The finest acting, most pleasant tasting and laxative cough syrup can be made at home by anyone. Obtain from a well stocked drugstore 2½ ounces of essence mentha-laxans; empty it into a pint bottle. Make a syrup with a pint of granulated sugar and a half pint boiling water; stir and let cool. Then fill up the bottle with syrup. Shake it well and take a teaspoonful every hour or two until the cough is cured. This is the quickest acting and surest cough remedy ever conceived. All wholesale druggists and most retail druggists sell essence mentha-laxans.

V.—Bathing For Health

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

ANY one who has watched a group of small boys diving from the docks of our seacoast cities does not need a scientist to tell him that they are thoroughly at home in the water, but the scientist may suggest that this "at homeness" is an instinct transmitted from remote ancestors in the glacial age and in support of this view will point out that human beings in the early stages of their development exhibit certain fishlike characteristics, which warrant the belief that away back in dim antiquity our ancestors were quite as well adapted to water as we now are to land.

The practical application of the above reflections is that bathing has a wide range of usefulness aside from its cleansing effect. Every well respecting American citizen desires to be clean and will bathe for that purpose more or less frequently, but the mistake should not be made of looking upon the bath simply as a cleansing process. Possibly for the reasons suggested above the more contact with water stimulates and invigorates the body entirely apart from the influence of temperature and the removal of dirt.

Warm water and pure soap are considered the essentials for a cleansing bath, but a cold bath, followed by vigorous rubbing, will accomplish all that is really necessary for cleanliness.

Dangers of Warm Bathing.

The vast amount of supposed dirt removed by the Turkish bath is mostly epithelial scales from the various layers of skin. To remove an excessive amount of this scale skin may impair its protective qualities; hence the advisability of not taking the Turkish or Russian bath oftener than once a week. However, the warm bath gives a greater feeling of confidence in one's cleanliness than the cold bath and is doubtless beneficial if not employed too often and so the exclusion of the more valuable and tonic cold bath.

It is a good plan to spray or sponge the neck and chest with cold water after finishing the warm, cleansing bath. This precaution should always be taken by those who rely solely on the warm bath, especially if they bathe every day; otherwise undue susceptibility to colds may develop. As a rule, the warm bath should be taken in the evening.

Most people who have employed the cold shower or plunge will testify to its delightful and invigorating effects, but there is no reason why it should be forced upon delicate children or feeble adults.

Baths For Babies.

A daily bath for the young baby is of the utmost importance. At first the temperature of the water should be 98 degrees F., but by the end of the first month it may be reduced to 70 degrees F.

When the child reaches eighteen months a cold sponge may be given as a bath to the warm bath.

Delicate children who have not been thus trained may be gradually led to the cold bath and enjoy its benefits if caution is used. For such children the temperature of the water should be warm or tepid at first and daily reduced until it is obvious that a vigorous and healthy reaction will not follow a further reduction.

It is really dangerous, not to say cruel, for obstinate nurses or parents to force an amiable child with a poor circulation to take a cold bath from which it is physically incapable of reacting.

Very often the cold shower or sponge bath is well borne if one stands in a tub of warm water.

Value of the Cold Bath.

The cold bath is a most valuable nervous and circulatory stimulant. When well borne it improves the circulation, not only in the skin, but in the remotest recesses of the vital organs.

The cold bath trains the nerve centers that control the production of body heat and those that control the blood vessels in such a way that the system is fortified against exposure and drafts. An earnest effort, therefore, should be made to accustom oneself to this valuable tonic and protective measure.

Harring physical disability, no one can offer a valid excuse for neglecting the daily bath. A tin tub, a jug of water, a sponge and a coarse towel suffice for a bath quite as refreshing as could be had in the luxurious halls of Caracalla.

Dangers of the Cold Bath.

Personally I question the advisability of the ice cold plunge as a daily practice. The shock of this plunge is well reacted from by many, but there is danger in some cases of undue strain upon the arteries and internal organs.

The moderately cold plunge or shower fulfills all purposes of health, and it is the part of wisdom to be moderate in this as in all things.

The ice cold bath is to be avoided by those suffering from heart or kidney trouble or rheumatism, but such subjects may still enjoy a daily tepid bath, especially if it is followed by a vigorous rubbing of the skin with a coarse towel. Also these subjects may harden themselves against colds by lightly sponging the neck and chest with cool water.

The best time for the cold bath is before breakfast. Following the bath, vigorous rubbing with a coarse towel and a few exercises adapted to the strength and endurance of the individual are advisable.

A very valuable measure in cases of nervous exhaustion and occasionally in cases of insomnia is the deep sheet bath, employed as follows:

The patient, stripped, should stand in a tub of warm water. A sheet dipped in cool or tepid water, the temperature depending upon the ability of the subject to react, is then wrapped around him from head to foot. Brisk friction of body and limbs is applied by an attendant, and the patient himself may rub the front of his body. Except on the advice of a physician such a bath should last but a few moments, and then the bather should be put to bed.

Bathing in Fevers.

When typhoid fever, pneumonia or other serious illness exists the question of cold bathing must be left to the attending physician. In a mild febrile condition much comfort will be afforded the patient by cool sponging. Even sponging with tepid water will reduce the temperature and allay nervous excitement. The sponge should not be "sopping" wet, but only wet enough to leave a light film of water on the skin.

The nightly hot foot bath is a valuable restorative measure, especially in middle life and old age. It promotes healthful, restful sleep and relaxes and refreshes the congested and tired brain.

After taking a hot foot bath the bather should go to bed at once and compose himself to rest before the effects of the bath pass away. No attempt should be made to induce a perspiration when the bath is taken for its sedative and restorative effects.

The value of a hot foot bath in checking a common cold is well known, but this measure is not employed as frequently as it should be. It is an extremely valuable remedy in the early stages of a cold, especially if the patient is wrapped in heavy blankets while taking the bath and its action is assisted by some simple hot drink, such as flaxseed tea, lemonade, etc., with a view to inducing a profuse perspiration.

Value of Hydrotherapy.

The other applications of water, massage, etc., in disease come within the province of the attending physician, and his judgment must be exercised in each individual case. We believe that such remedies are not employed as frequently as they should be. The failure to use them results not from lack of knowledge on the part of physicians, but because it is difficult to carry out such measures in the ordinary household without employing skilled nurses. The average patient prefers to swallow a few pills rather than put himself to any inconvenience. This explains the resort to so many irregular lines of treatment when drugs have failed to effect a cure.

NEW YORK CITY TO HAVE NEW HARBOR.
Map showing the time saved by transferring incoming trans-Atlantic passengers to New York by train from Montauk. President Ralph Peters of the Long Island Railroad company.

New York, N. Y.—A project is now under way to relieve New York harbor proper of all trans-Atlantic passenger business and shorten the route to Liverpool by from four to seven hours. The scheme is a daring one. It is planned to land trans-Atlantic passengers at the extreme end of Long Island on Montauk point and rush them via Long Island railroad to the heart of New York city through the tunnel.

The plan is believed to be perfectly logical and was first suggested two decades ago by Austin Corbin. Even the imagination of Corbin and his followers failed to picture the gigantic wharf system which may be built along the southern shore of Gardiner's bay and the harbor which Arthur Benson of Brooklyn bought from the tribe of Montauk Indians for several hundred dollars and now wifes. After the first pier is built, steamship men say, work will be rushed on a continuous system of such structures stretching a half mile or more from shore. With from four to eight hours clipped from the time of trans-Atlantic voyages, steamship men predict that it will be only a short time when the New York docks will be used chiefly for freight. Some even say the big piers built by the city along West Street may be used in time solely for coastwise steamers.

The Long Island railroad is rushing work on its terminal at Bay Ridge, where there are boat connections with the freight yards in New Jersey. From Port Pond to New London, Conn., freight and passenger boats may speed across the sound, connecting with Connecticut railroads.

Corbin had in mind the East river tunnel when he first mentioned Montauk as a steamship harbor, and when the Pennsylvania railroad connected Long Island and New Jersey with a central station in New York the steamship companies seriously considered the plan. WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

TO THE Girl who is Planning to Teach School,
Any School or College,
North America.

That's what I'd put on the envelope if I were addressing today's letter.

And since I can't put it in an envelope and send it to her, I'll just breathe a hope that it will fall into her hands.

When I meet young girls at college I usually ask them, "What are you going to do when you are graduated?"

And in—well, to put it conservatively—six out of ten cases, the substance of the answer is "Teach."

And in at least four cases out of the six, that answer is given in a form that shows the speaker's entire lack of enthusiasm.

Such as, "I don't know what else to do, so I suppose I'll teach," or "I guess I'll teach. Everybody does."

Dear girls everywhere, high school and college girls, who are saying things like this, who are planning to teach, not because you think you are especially qualified for the work or will particularly enjoy it, but just because it's the easiest and most conventional thing to do, just because "everybody does," I want you to change your minds.

What you are planning to do isn't fair to you and it isn't fair to the children you expect to have under your care.

It is bad enough to do anything just to earn your living and not for love of the work, but to teach in that spirit is even worse, because it will mean less to many helpless children, as well as to you.

Mary Lyon, that wonderful woman and queen of teachers who founded Mt. Holyoke, believed it was almost wicked to teach primarily for money. "Never teach the immortal mind for money," she advised her girls. "If money making is your object, be dressmakers or milliners, but teaching is a sacred, not a mercenary, employment."

Anyone who thinks that sounds rather grandiloquent, may be interested to know how Miss Lyon lived up to her own advice. She founded Mt. Holyoke and was its president, a position involving tremendous work and responsibility in those pioneer days of women's education, and yet she labored on doing most of the work for love, receiving as her highest salary $250 a year or about $0.70 a day.

Wouldn't she be grieved and saddened if she could see how hundreds of young women each year take up the profession of teaching just because they must do something to bring in a monthly pay envelope in the easiest and most conventional method?

Dear girls, for everyone of you I know there is something that you can do really well and will really enjoy doing.

It may not be anything as conventional or as easy to get a start in as teaching.

But it is something that will give you infinitely more happiness than merely following the line of least resistance and being an indifferent or mediocre teacher.

Maybe you have no idea yet what this work may be.

But I believe that if you make up your mind that you will not follow that line of least resistance into an already overcrowded profession, but will find your own niche, and if you will keep ever alertly on the watch for any hint or suggestion within or without yourself, you will find a way to open up to you the way you surely be opened unto you.

Won't you try it?

LET there be many windows in your soul.

That all the glory of the universe may beautify it. Not the narrow pane of one poor crowd can catch the radiance of the sun.

That shines from countless sources. Tear away the blinds of superstition. Let the light pour through fair windows, broad as truth itself.

And high as heaven. . . . Tune your ear

To all the wordless music of the stars, And to the voice of nature; and your heart

Shall turn to truth and goodness as the plant turns to the sun. A thousand unseen hands

Reach down to help you to their peace-crowned heights; And all the forces of the firmament

Shall fortify your strength, and be not afraid To thrust aside half truths and grasp the whole.

The Old-Fashioned Indian Pudding. Scald one cupful of cornmeal in a quart of boiling milk, add a cupful of sugar, two-thirds of a cup of suet and the same of raisins, a half cup of flour, cinnamon or nutmeg to taste and two teaspoonfuls of salt. Add another quart of milk and bake slowly three hours.

Old-Fashioned Stew. Put the oysters over the heat with their own liquor or an equal amount of water, cook until the edges curl; add seasonings of salt, butter and pepper and turn into the tureen. Scald a quart of milk for a pint of oysters, and pour over the oysters.

Egg Plant With Mushroom Stuffing. Cut the egg plant in halves lengthwise, and parboil in salted water until the pulp is tender. Scoop the pulp to within half an inch of the skin. Chop the pulp fine, add half its bulk of chopped mushrooms, the same quantity of bread crumbs soaked in stock or moistened with water, half a teaspoonful of minced onion, a tablespoonful of butter and pepper and salt to taste. Fill the shells with the mixture, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake three-quarters of an hour. Minced ham may be used instead of mushrooms and the onion omitted. This dish is a delicious as an accompaniment to steak or game.

The man who would make that assertion, and uphold it by the law, is the kind of man who is responsible for the general widespread movement for women's rights. Such laws and such law interpreters have much to answer for.

A woman who marries a man has a few rights left after giving up the greater part when donning the wedding ring.

She is certainly still the "child of her mother," and the commandment "honor thy father and thy mother," was not written for man alone.

Any woman who becomes a wife in all that the term implies has a right to a just division of the income. She has a right to freedom of her own thoughts. She has the right to divide her property with her mother if she so desires. It is a sad and pitiful thing to have old age creep on a woman who has always been active, to become helpless and to be forced to depend upon others—to sit in a home where she is made unwelcome is one of the terrors of religion.

The man who would turn his mother out of his home when she is old would deserve all the obloquy which would be heaped upon him. He would be an outcast from decent society. Laws are made to compel men to help their aged parents and prevent them from becoming charges upon the town or county in which they dwell.

Is a woman any less the child of her parents than a man? Is a woman shorn of all rights in a home when she marries?

Any woman earns her board and clothes and enough to make her old mother comfortable if she does half the duties that the usual household demands of her.

It is one of the mysteries to me that many good men will blind their eyes to the duty which a woman owes to her parents and, at the same time, forget the love he promised his wife. A man who truly loves his wife will not deliberately hurt her and yet how can he find a more foolish way to torture her than through her love of her mother?

It is sad enough to have to depend upon others but to have the bread of dependence made bitter by harsh words and cold looks from the man of the house has driven more than one old mother to suicide, and many a woman, who would otherwise have been a good wife, to the divorce courts.

Judges like this and men like the husband in the case are to blame for the "rights of woman" movement. Women would have been content to "live in the shelter of a good man's love" had not good men, in the truest sense of goodness, been so scarce.

And even good men and true have taken this same stand since the beginning of time in regard to the mother of the woman they say they love. Why?

THE MOTHER-IN-LAW.

By MARY HUSSELL.

There is an eastern judge who has had his hands heavily upon one of our saddest problems.

He had no gentle touch. He thought with a man's sternest and most stubborn legal mind. This is the judge who recently decided that a woman has no moral nor legal claim to a place in her daughter's home.

He waxed indignant at the audacity of some women who, he believed, would saddle a whole family upon the unsuspecting and much abused husband if she could.

He has done a deed which will work for evil long after he has been gathered to his fathers. His decision will help many a man to do an injustice to his wife, and to her mother, long after the judge has learned a broader charity in a wider field of action.

The man who would make that assertion, and uphold it by the law, is the kind of man who is responsible for the general widespread movement for women's rights. Such laws and such law interpreters have much to answer for.

A woman who marries a man has a few rights left after giving up the greater part when donning the wedding ring.

FOR RHEUMATISM.

Rheumatism has for ages been a puzzle to the doctors. Some claim it to be an infection, a germ disease. Others claim that the cause is uric acid, a kidney ailment. It is said that uric acid is carried by the blood into the small arteries of the joints and skin where it crystallizes and it is the small, sharp crystals that cause the intense pain with every motion of the body by cutting into the flesh and nerves. Whatever the cause, the best relief known is an Alkaline Elixer of the Sallayates. The chemical nature of the Sallayates is to form soluble compounds with the urates. In this way these crystals are dissolved, taken up by the blood and taken out of the body by the kidneys.

This rheumatic elixer is taken in tepid-water doses in hot water before meals. The cure is often in a day or two, yet the remedy should be taken for some time to thoroughly neutralize the blood and prevent a recurrence of the trouble. The elimination of the uric acid and the bowels should be kept active. Rheumatic Elixer is compounded by Mr. F. M. Young, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, who would be pleased to give you any other information you wish. Sold at 50c. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River St., the drug store that makes a specialty of drugs.

LOSE LIFE THAT WE MAY FIND ITWAS THE SUBSTANCE OF THE TEXT OF REV. HAZEN'S SER-MON LAST EVENING.

VALUE OF SACRIFICE IN LIFE

Only As We Give Up Something for Others Do We Realize What is Best and Most Worth While.

"The Value of Sacrifice in Life," was the subject of the sermon delivered by Rev. Hazen at the First Baptist church last evening. It was the last of a series of sermons on the values of various things in the life of the individual. John's Gospel, 12th chapter and verses 24-5 offered the text: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die it bringeth forth much fruit. He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world, shall keep it unto life eternal."

"It is here that Jesus brings us one of his hardest messages. It is easy for us to see the value of the home in our lives, and we can say that all our happiness gathers about the home. We can also realize that nothing that amounts to anything in this world can be gained without labor; we know that love is one of the most valuable offerings of life and that the church is important and the man who neglects it has missed much of the best in his life. But the thought of this text is harder to understand. The person who loses himself must make a sacrifice."

"Why is there so much sacrifice on the part of everyone, we ask? Why should I be asked to make a sacrifice, for this or that purpose? For the poor we say we can't sympathize with them; they have made their own condition; they are ungrateful for what we do give them. Another man complains because he is born into conditions that he cannot help. He feels opportunities and is continually called upon to make sacrifices for those who are dependent upon him, and he asks why this loss should be harder than others. It is a common complaint, this of too much sacrifice, and we grow weary and despondent and life becomes heavy."

"But we should stop and consider what sacrifices others have made for us. What has not the mother and father given up for their children? Every care and attention is given them and sacrifice after sacrifice is made in order that they may have every opportunity and privilege, in a financial way, note what the parents do; many have given up the hope of owning a home in order that their offspring might have the advantage of an education, or forego the laying up of a bank account for the time of idleness in order to give their child some opportunity."

"Stop and think what the church has sacrificed for your soul's welfare and help. And recall what the work which your teachers have done in order that you might attain an education and hold the position that you now have. All that we have today is the result of someone's sacrifice. In the business world the man starts out to succeed, and he gives up pleasure and luxuries in order to attain greater opportunities later on. All through life he sacrifices for his own sake and betterment and when others come asking a sacrifice in behalf of someone else he complains that life is burdensome and that he has been continually giving up things. But if he would stop and consider the sacrifices that have been made for him he would find that the remainder of his life would be necessary to anyone whose near balance accounts."

"All life is a sacrifice and the one who does not realize it is not getting the best out of life. The man who gives up for the sake of others is always honored, loved and respected. He is trusted and looked up to as a leader. Gladstone was such a man. At one time when he was suspected of being untrustworthy in a political crisis, when it was learned that he went around quietly and unostentatiously giving alms to the poor when his time was most valuable and he needed rest for himself, the people's confidence was completely restored."

"We can have everything the world offers but nothing can take the place of good heart-felt sacrifice. The hour of sacrifice is the happiest in life. To realize that just a little has been given up for others whether they appreciate it or not, brings a spirit of confidence and self-respect that can't be found elsewhere. To give over to others of our own choice without receiving anything in return, is getting the best out of life; it is finding life when you have lost it. Christ sacrificed every opportunity, not because he was compelled to, but because he loved to do it."

"We are happy today for the sacrifices that have been made for us on the part of mother, home, and Christ. Are we selfish enough to go on without giving up one thing for others? If we are then we are misers and are not worthy to live."

"Many there are who do make sacrifices, and although it oftentimes takes the buoyancy out of life, still it brings with it an almost angelic countenance and a sweet and lovable character."

"When the opportunity comes to make a sacrifice it should be taken as a privilege. The lives of all the great men have been full of sacrifice and they have our admiration and respect on that account. And so let us take the opportunities of sacrifice for others as a privilege realizing that it is the better part of life."

PATHFINDER CAR
STARTED ON TOUROn Tour of State for 1911 Reliability Run—Will Pass Through Janesville Next Saturday.

Leaving Milwaukee today the pathfinder car for the 1911 Wisconsin State Automobile association reliability run, started its tour of the state to pick out the route for the proposed run. The car will pass through the northern and northwestern part of the state and will reach Janesville next Saturday. George W. Brown, state agent for the Overland company, one of whose cars has been selected as the pathfinder, will act as the driver, and the party in the car will consist of the official pathfinder, M. C. Moore, president of the state association, Mrs. Moore, Manning Vaughn of one of the Milwaukee papers, and Johnnie Grogan, mechanic. Green Bay probably will be the first night stop for the pathfinder car. The route from Milwaukee will be along the lake shore as far as Two Rivers, thence to Green Bay. For the second day of the pathfinding the car will proceed to Marinette, thence to Shawano, and from there to Antigo and Rhinelander, where it probably will stop for the second night's stop. The third day's pathfinding will take in Tomahawk, Alverno, Waunakee, Marshfield and Grand Rapids. The next day will find the car passing through Black River Falls, Sparta and West Salem and finishing at La Crosse.

From La Crosse the car will go to Casshton, Virgo, Soldiers' Grove, Richland Center, Lone Rock, where the Wisconsin river will be crossed, thence to Dodgeville and Mt. Horeb, ending the day at Madison.

From Madison the car will go south-east to Stoughton, Edgerton, Janesville and Beloit, thence to Delavan, Elkhorn and Burlington to Kenosha and Racine and home.

On the reliability run, which will probably take place in the month of July next year, Janesville will be a night control for the contestants in the run. In a letter to Dr. W. E. Edgerton of this city, President Moore stated that the plans were to start from La Crosse on a certain day of the run, passing through Virgo, Richland Center, Dodgeville, Madison, Stoughton, and Edgerton and arriving here late in the evening. Dr. Edgerton has notified Mr. Moore that the necessary arrangements will be made and the tourists will be quartered at the Grand and Myers hotels. Dr. Edgerton is one of the directors of the state automobile association and it was through him that Janesville was included in the run.

SERIOUSLY HURT
BY FALL ON HEADOliver Brown Suffered Severe Injuries
at Baker Co. Plant in Evansville
by Falling into Scale Pit.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville, Nov. 7.—Oliver Brown, an employee of the Baker Mfg. Co., was seriously hurt by falling head foremost into the scale pit at the company's plant on Friday afternoon. Just how and when the accident happened is not now, but it was nearly six o'clock when he was found by other workmen who were attracted to the place by hearing moans. He was unconscious when discovered and remained so for several hours. Dr. F. C. Colony, the attending physician, found that his skull was injured and one year nearly severed, his face badly bruised and otherwise hurt. He called the next morning and at the present writing is getting along very well.

Mrs. George Shaw entertained a few intimate friends at a quilting party at her home Friday afternoon. Beginning this evening, Nov. 7, a series of special meetings will be held in the First Baptist church. Rev. Sanborn of Wauwatosa will conduct the services which will be held every evening for two weeks at 7:30 o'clock. Everyone is cordially invited.

Mrs. M. J. White and three daughters of Beloit, spent a few days of last week at the home of their son and brother, Elmer White. They are on their way to Dakota where they will make their future home.

About forty neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Winter spent a very pleasant evening at their home Friday evening of last week. They came together to bid their farewell before they moved for their new home in Sioux Falls, S. D. The occasion was a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Winter. During the evening the friends presented Mrs. Winter with a silver fern dish and Mr. Winter with a reminder of a gold watch fob as a reminder of the occasion.

Bert Campbell of Chicago is paying a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Campbell and other friends of his boyhood days.

Mrs. A. Day and daughter, Genevieve, spent Friday afternoon in Janesville.

Mrs. W. H. H. Johnson was a Janesville visitor Friday.

Mrs. Agnes Smith of Richland Center has been here for a visit to relatives.

Harold Theobald of Beloit college spent Saturday and Sunday at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Elias White spent Sunday in Albany as guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reese.

MRS. ASTOR'S ALIMONY $105,000.

Lease of Valuable Tract in New York

Bares Secret.

New York, Nov. 7.—The alimony that Col. John Jacob Astor is to pay to Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, who obtained a final decree of divorce in March, 1910, now appears to be $105,000 a year. To secure payment in full she is given to Mrs. Astor on one of the most valuable plots of real estate in the city.

Recent contracts and leases signed by one of the large realty companies with Colonel Astor fix that sum as the annual rental of a valuable block of property. This rental is to be paid to the divorced wife.

MORMON CAPITAL
CITY OF BEAUTYSALT LAKE CITY AS SEEN BY ULYSSES G. WAITE.

GREAT MORMON TEMPLE

Is One of the Sights to be Seen, But Visitors May Only View It
From the Exterior.

Long Beach, Cal., Nov. 1.—[Special correspondence.]—Salt Lake City is in a class by itself. Among American municipalities it holds a unique position. Not alone does it appeal to the tourist by reason of beauty of location and sublimity of climate; but it is one of the great religious capitals of the world. What Mecca is to the Mohammedan; what Rome is to the Catholic; what holy cities are to the devout in these respective religions. Salt Lake City is to the Latter Day Saint. We were fortunate in our arrival. A great semi-annual conference of the saints was drawing to a close and we were in time to attend one of the closing meetings at the mammoth tabernacle. We secured seats because we hurried. Those who hurried long before the glass and arranged and rearranged each frill and furrow of their Sunday garb, either stood up, or stayed out, and there were thousands that did both. In fact, when President Joseph F. Smith ascended the platform to call the assemblage to order, not only were 12,000 persons packed into the great auditorium, but he announced that an overflow meeting would be held in assembly hall, and later we learned that not only was this hall overflowed, but there were two monster overflow gatherings outside in the temple enclosure.

There was much of interest in this Sunday morning gathering for us. Nowhere else in America was such a meeting-house as this in which we were seated. The building is 250 feet long, 150 feet wide, and is covered by a self-supporting dome roof which resembles the shell of a turtle. Up there in front of me, I copy verbatim a description of it. In order that you may get a general idea of its size and powers, "The front towers are 52 feet high. The organ has 108 stops and accessories and contains 5,500 pipes, ranging in length from 2 inches to 32 feet. It is capable of 400 ton variations. There is no tone or shade of tone it cannot produce. The player sits 65 feet from the organ. He can make the pipes respond 720 times a minute."

You may be assured that we listened attentively while the master of the keys put the great instrument through its paces and then our attention was called to the platform, for the dignitaries of the Mormon church were taking their places. Joseph P. Smith, present head of the church and officially designated as president, prophet, seer, revelator and leader. He had a well groomed appearance and wore a patriarchal beard, which he stroked complacently and often. This being president of Zion is a big thing, for I found after a short, oh looking through the city directory, that Joseph P. Smith is not alone a religious leader; he is the executive head of more commercial and financial enterprises than any other man in Utah, for the Mormons are a thrifty people and they believe in looking after temporal as well as spiritual things.

I did not give my whole and undivided attention to the head of the church, however, for there was another Mormon dignitary whom I was anxious to see and I kept looking until I found him away over at the far end of the row of apostles. Then I looked over surreptitiously and told Mrs. Waite that there was United States Senator Reed Smoot and pointed him out to her. Of course, she craned her neck to see the man whose election to the senate raised such a furor among the women of the nation and caused such a bombardment of that dignified body, with petitions and remonstrances from indignant females everywhere, protesting against the seating of a Mormon in the highest legislative body in the land. But "senatorial courtesy," or some other potent influence, allowed the Hon. Reed to retain his seat in the senate and he has a record for faithful and earnest, and patriotic work there.

We were fortunate in hearing him address the great assemblage later on and his words of belief in the Mormon church, faith in Utah and love for the great West were appropriate, sane and eloquent. Two other apostles addressed the meeting and it was afternoon as we left the tabernacle. Temple square comprises ten acres of ground in the very heart of the city. It is surrounded by a high wall and is beautifully parked and well kept. Within this enclosure are located the tabernacle, assembly hall, bureau of information, and the great temple.

This is by all odds the most conspicuous object in the city, towering as it does over every other building, and we were interested in knowing something of its history. Work began on the foundation walls almost coincident with the laying out of the city, and 30 years elapsed before the edifice was completed. The granite used in the structure was quarried 20 miles south of the city and hauled to the site by means of ox teams. The walls are 16 feet thick at the base and taper to 4 feet at the top. Six lofty pinnacles crown the massive pile, the tallest of which, at a height of 215 feet from the street, stands a gigantic golden figure of golden figure of Moroni, the angel who revealed the plates of the Book of Mormon to Joseph Smith.

As I stood looking up at the great building, I thought what a readable, not to say sensational letter I might give to the world, if I could only gain access to the interior, for no Gentile eye has ever scanned the inside of the temple and only those of the faith know of the mysteries its granite walls conceal. This seemed queer here in free America, but I was not going to assault those great iron doors in defiance of the Mormon hierarchy and in de-looking up at the great building, I

IOWA POPULATION SHOWS LOSS.

Decreases 7,082 to 2,224,711 in Last Ten Years.

Washington, Nov. 7.—The population of Iowa is 2,224,711, according to the enumeration in the thirtieth census. This is a decrease of 7,082, or 0.3 per cent, under 2,231,853 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 319,672, or 16.7 per cent.

The decrease did not surprise census bureau officials, as it was in line with what was expected in the agricultural regions of the middle west.

Unless the present basis of apportionment is retained it is probable that Iowa will lose one of her 11 members of congress.

Director Durand attributes the falling off to the fact that the land already is fully occupied and a general tendency toward larger farms. He says a growth cannot be expected unless there is a change to more intensive cultivation.

"BLACK HAND" ATTACKS FOUR.

New York Italians Are Dying From Injuries—Assaults Escapes.

New York, Nov. 7.—Four Italians are dying as the result of mysterious Black Hand attacks. Dominick Tofoni, a wealthy Harlem saloonkeeper, was halted by three masked men on his way home and blackkicked into unconsciousness. Vincent Vilano, a merchant, was pushed beneath a street car in the West Side Italian colony after a quarrel with two unidentified companions, and received fatal injuries. Anthony Ringino and Gaetano Porro, small contractors, when walking together on the lower East side, were surrounded by a gang of young Italians and shot down. Both will die. The assailants of all four men escaped without leaving any clues as to their identity.

ELECTION NOTICE

To the Electors of Rock County, Wisconsin:

OFFICE OF COUNTY CLERK, October 31, 1910

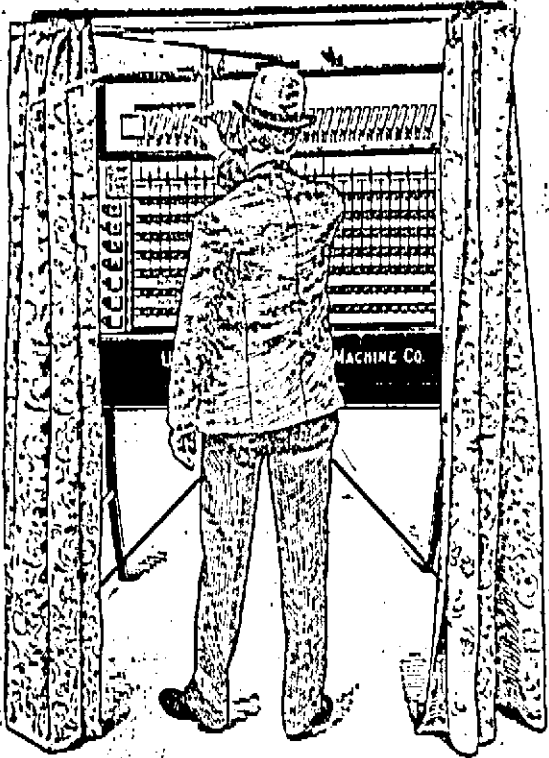

Information to Voters in Regard to the Election to Be Held On November 8th, 1910

Notice is hereby given that a general election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages and election precincts in the county of Rock, on the 8th day of November, 1910, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose names have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office, the appropriate party or other designation, each in its proper column together with the questions submitted to a vote.

DIRECTIONS FOR VOTING ON THE VOTING MACHINE: 1st. Close the curtain. 2d. Pull the Yellow Lever having on it the names of your political party over to the right until the Bell rings. (This will turn down the Pointers over the names of the candidates in your party.) 3d. If you wish to vote a Straight Party Ticket, leave the Pointers as they are (Down, in their voting position). But if you wish to "split," or "scratch," your ticket, turn up the Pointer from over the name of the candidate in your own party that you wish to cut out, and then turn Down the Pointer over the name of the candidate you wish to vote for for that office, and leave it there. 4th. Open the Curtain. NOTE—Unless you are sure that you know just how to operate the machine, it would be well for you to practice on some machine before election day.

HOW TO VOTE ON THE U. S. STANDARD VOTING MACHINE.

Move the Red Handle of the Curtain Lever to the right as far as it will go. This will close the Curtain around you, and unlock the machine for voting.

VOTER ABOUT TO CLOSE THE CURTAIN.

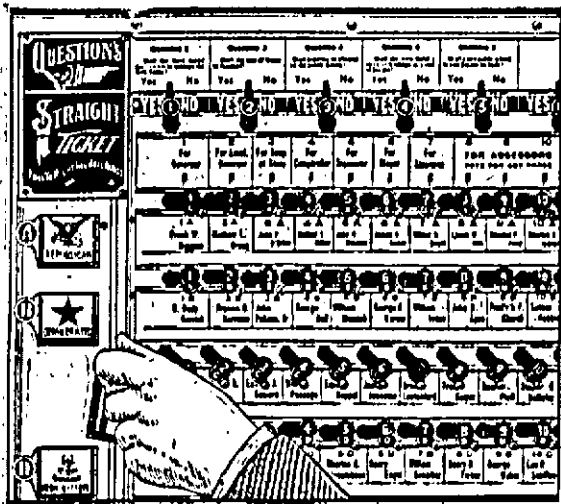

HOW TO VOTE ON QUESTIONS.

To vote Yes, turn the Question Pointer to the word Yes and leave it there. To vote No, turn the Question Pointer to the word No, and leave it there.

HOW TO VOTE A STRAIGHT TICKET.

Having closed the Curtain—Pull the Party Lever bearing the name or emblem of your Party over to the right UNTIL THE BELL RINGS, and then let it go back. This turns down to a voting position all of the Pointers of the candidates of your party.

The ringing of the bell signifies that the Party Lever has been pulled far enough to unlock the Curtain Lever and engage the registering mechanism.

VOTER PULLING OVER PARTY LEVER.

The turned down Pointers indicate the names of the candidates for whom the vote will be cast.

Leave the Pointers as they are (down in a voting position).

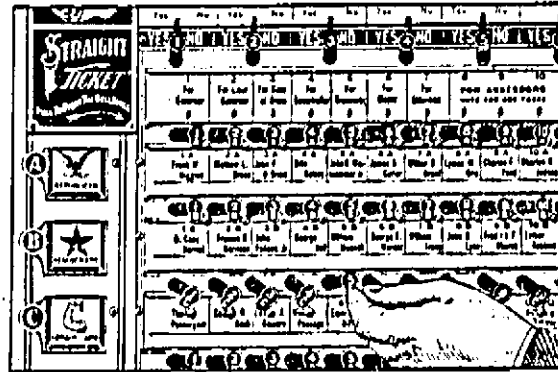

Move the Red Handle of the Curtain Lever to the left as far as it will go.

This will count your vote, open the Curtain, and set the machine for the next voter.

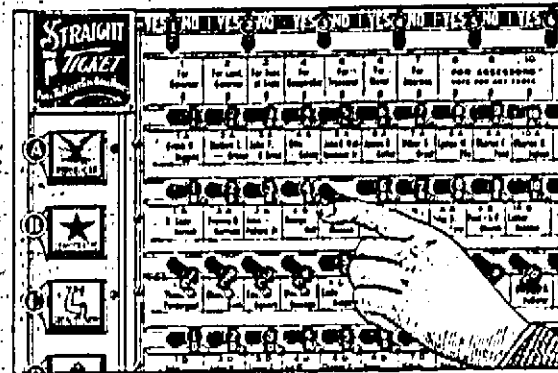

HOW TO VOTE A SPLIT TICKET.

Having closed the Curtain—Pull the Party Lever bearing the name or emblem of your Party over to the right UNTIL THE BELL RINGS, and then let it go back. This turns down to a voting position all of the Pointers of the candidates of your party.

Turn back (up) the Pointer from over the name of the candidate you wish to cut. See illustration below.

And then turn down a Pointer over the name of the candidate you wish to vote for for that office. See illustration below.

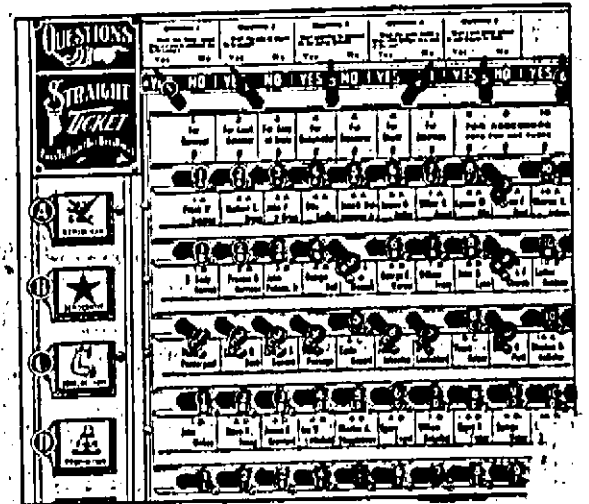

Be sure to complete each Split before making another.

For an office to which two or more candidates are to be elected, the required number of candidates can be voted for, and no more, regardless of position.

After the vote is arranged, move the Red Handle of the Curtain Lever to the left as far as it will go. This will count one vote for every candidate that has a Pointer left down over his name.

HOW TO VOTE ON QUESTIONS.

To vote Yes, turn the Question Pointer to the word Yes, and leave it there. To vote No, turn the Question Pointer to the word No, and leave it there.

THE ABOVE CUT SHOWS:

That the voter has voted Party Lever "C" and then—Split his vote for Treasurer, on Column 5.
That he has voted for Assessors, voting for three on Column 9 (for which office he is permitted to vote for any three candidates on either of the Columns, 8, 9, and 10).
That he has voted "Yes" on Questions 1 and 2.
That he has not voted on Questions 3 and 5.
That he has voted "No" on Question 4.
If the voter desires, he may make any further changes while the Curtain remains closed, as the vote is not registered until the Curtain is opened.
The Pointers must be left down over the names to be voted for. If the voter turns them back the vote will not be counted, as the opening of the Curtain turns back the Pointers and counts the vote.

VALUABLE AS FOOD

Sunflower Seed Is Allowed to Go to Waste in Missouri.

Oil Is More Edible Than That of Cotton and Almost Equal to Olive's—Stalks Make Excellent Fuel.

Jefferson City, Mo.—"Millions of pounds of sunflower seed are allowed to go to waste in Missouri annually, simply because it is not generally known that they can be used for food for man, as well as animals, and therefore have a commercial value," says the 1910 Red Book of the bureau of labor and statistics. Figures made public by Labor Commissioner J. C. A. Miller show that in the year 1909 about 40,000 pounds of the seeds were sent to market by Missouri's 114 counties and that about $4,000 was realized by the sale of the same.

"While originally a native of tropical America, the sunflower is now found growing more or less wild in all cultivable portions of the world, and especially in south and central Europe, seeds having been carried there from America and planted by several sixteenth century rovers, who took a fancy to the large flower, both for its peculiar wild beauty and that it had a food value," reads the Red Book chapter on this interesting subject.

"In Russia the sunflower seed is prepared and eaten just like Americans do peanuts. The poorer classes often eat the seeds raw, the only drawback to this style of turning them into a palatable article being the difficulty of easily separating the kernel from the hull.

"In Missouri the sunflower is found everywhere, growing in vacant city lots and amid rubbish as well as in the rich lands of the southeastern section of the state and in the foothills of the Ozarks. Goats thrive on the plant, eating from the seeds and petals down to the coarse rough stalks and the roots. The seed is often used, mixed with other seed, as feed for poultry, and parrots especially enjoy the menu, forming a food which was a mainstay for them in tropical regions.

"The sunflower counties in Missouri—that is, the ones which marketed the most seed in 1909," according to the figures of Superintendent Statistician A. T. Edmonson of the labor bureau, "are Butler, St. Charles, St. Louis, Jackson, Ste. Genevieve, Buchanan, Jasper and Mississippi, probably, because they are closer to the larger cities than the other counties. It is but the question of time before all vacant lands of this state, not of great value for cultivation or pasture purposes, will be planted with sunflower seed and turned into use in that way.

"An oil closely resembling olive oil, but of course inferior in quality, is made by pressing sunflower seeds. It is very palatable, easily digested, and has a high food value. In this respect it is said to be superior to our cottonseed oil, which is put to so many uses in domestic life and in art and science."

"In portions of Europe a bouilli for infant is made from the sunflower seed. On religious days, when meat must be abstained from, the seed is freely used as an article of diet.

"In fact, sunflower oil is used for paints, taking the place of linseed oil, and when properly refined and prepared is almost as valuable."

"The flower is full of the substances which make honey, and therefore is an article of food for bees. The stalks and leaves and flower petals make excellent fodder for cattle. As a fuel, the stalks and leaves have high value in sections where wood is scarce, and not too great a degree of heat is required. An acre of sunflowers will yield several cords of wood fuel without considering the value of the seed. It is estimated that 50 bushels of seed can be grown on an acre of ground. A bushel of seed yields a gallon of oil. Figuring that the oil is as valuable as the cottonseed variety, which in 1909 averaged about 40 cents, one acre of sunflower seed will produce oil worth $20, which means that the farmer's share will be about $12 and the manufacturer's the remainder, out of which sums both would of course meet all their expenses.

"As sunflowers can easily be grown in corners and in lands of little use for anything else, it would pay to produce more. The oil can be used like cottonseed oil, in the manufacture of oleomargarine and several other cooking preparations."

"The sunflower is freely used for many purposes in China. The fiber of the stalk, which has great strength, is woven into fabrics, some of which when properly colored and prepared have a silky feel and appearance. Such use could also be made of the fiber here.

"In tropical America the plant attains a height of 20 feet and has a flower over a foot in diameter. In Missouri it grows sometimes to ten feet, with flowers in proportion. The future will develop other uses for the sunflower."

Buy Bird, Then Shoot It.

Paris.—A Paris game dealer has discovered a paying strategy for sportsmen who are unsuccessful. In the basement of the shop there is a popgun and a supply of pellets, and sportsmen who wish to affirm that they have shot their birds may, on payment of a shilling, fire some small shot at their purchases.

FAC-SIMILE OF

OFFICIAL BALLOT

If you desire to vote an entire party ticket for state, congressional, legislative and county offices make a cross (X) or other mark in the circle (O) under the party designation at the head of the ballot. If you desire to vote for any particular person without regard to party, mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom you desire to vote if it be there, or write any name that you wish to vote for, in the proper place.

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters: A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the "ballot" clerk which must have indorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for. If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for that purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates of that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of the party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross mark be placed in the square at the right of the name or names of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by the party, he shall mark his ballot by marking a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote or by inserting or writing in the name of the candidate. A voter may vote upon a question submitted to a vote of the people by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give. The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memoranda to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter. After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed indorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box and pass out of the voting place. A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of one or two election officers in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion as to such person's disability. The following is a fac-simile of the official ballot.

WINCHELL SMITH

At the conclusion of the meal, which endured throughout two interminable hours, the elder men folk withdrew to the garden and the lawn. Nat was left to Josie, who conducted him to the side porch, out of sight of everybody, and planted herself in a baggy hammock there. She was gay, even brilliant within her limitations, arch, mischievous, coy, playful, by turns, animated by a sense of conquest. She supplied the major part of the conversation, chatting volubly on the thousand subjects she didn't understand, the dozen she did. In the most ingenious manner imaginable she laid herself open to advances, not once, but a score of times, and when he failed to respond according to the code of Nashville had the wit to mask her chagrin, did she fool any. Very probably she laid his lack of responsiveness at the door of his shyness (a quality he was wholly without) and liked him the better for it.

It was on this day that she extracted from him his promise to join the choir. He acceded through apathy alone. "I don't care whether you can sing or not," she confessed, with a look. "But I do want somebody to walk home with me that I like."

"That's a nice way of putting it," Duncan considered without emphasis. "Holland Barnett's always walked home with me, but I think he's just tiresome."

"Why?" inquired the young man, with some interest. She averted her head, plucking at the strands of the hammock. "Oh, you know," she said diffidently. "Oh?" Nat was enlightened. "Then I'm sorry for Holland."

"I can't blame him, you know." He couldn't help this. The time, the place, the girl, inspired—indeed, incited—one to banality.

"Why?" she persisted. "Oh, you know." He caught the intonation of her previous words, precisely.

She had the grace to blush and hang her head, but he received a thrilling sidelong glance. "Ahl! Aren't you awful to talk that way, Mr. Duncan?"

"Yes," he admitted meekly. "Then you will join the choir?" "Oh, yes," he agreed listlessly. "I'm so glad."

He thanked her, but avoided her eye. "We might as well begin tonight," she suggested presently, with diffident, downcast eyes.

"What—the choir?" He was startled. "Oh, I couldn't without a rehearsal!" "No, I didn't mean that."

"No?" "I mean about Holland." She was paying minute attention to the line in to sound innocent, but it looks as if you were right, old man—apparently there's nothing to it.

"Probably I should have stayed on for supper, but I couldn't; I should have choked. As it was, my soul was curdling. Another ten minutes and I should have jumped down on the lawn and run round the house on all fours, snapping and foaming at the mouth, and have wound up by 'biting old Blinky."

MADE WELL AND STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Jefferson, Iowa.—"When my baby was just two months old I was completely run down and my internal organs were in terrible shape. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and mother wrote and told you just how I was. I began to gain weight and now I am real well."

Another Woman Cured. Glenwood, Iowa.—"About three years ago I had falling and other female troubles, and I was so sick I could not do my own work. Within six months I was made sound and well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will always tell my friends that your remedies cured me; and you can publish my letter."—Mrs. C. W. Dunn, Glenwood, Iowa.

If you belong to that countless army of women who suffer from some form of female ill, just try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For thirty years this famous remedy has been the standard for all forms of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, fibroids, tumors, ulceration, inflammation, irregularities, backache, etc.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

portion of her skirt. "About Holland?" "Yes; I mean—You know what I mean, Mr. Duncan?" "I assure you I do not, Miss Lockwood." "About not walking home with him any more. I don't want to. I wish you'd commence tonight instead of chattering practice night. I'd much rather walk home with you." "After evening service, you mean?" She nodded. "It'll be a great pleasure."

"Really?" She gave him her eyes now. "Really," he assured her. "Ah, I don't believe you mean that!" "But indeed I do."

It was not until nearly 5 o'clock that he was given a chance to escape. He had even then to refuse indefinitely an invitation to stay to supper.

Minta Lockwood—an expansive woman, generously conversant—almost smothered him with appreciation of his thanks. She held his hand in a large, moist palm and bent upon him, saying, "Now't you know the way, Mr. Duncan?"

"Yes," Blinky insisted, blinking regularly, "drop in any time. Take pot luck. We're plain people, Mr. Duncan, but allus glad to see our friends. Drop in any time."

Josie accompanied him to the front gate, where etiquette required him to linger for a parting chat.

"Goodby." The girl gave him her hand. "I'm real glad you came—at last."

"The pleasure has been all mine," insisted the glib little blonde, fishing the trite phrase desperately from the gray faculty of his thoughts.

"You won't forget?" "Forget what?" "About tonight."

"Do you imagine I could?" Josie returned to the family conclave, to interrupt a symposium on Duncan's qualities.

Duncan wrote to Kellogg in his room that night after church. "I don't want to sound immodest, but it looks as if you were right, old man—apparently there's nothing to it."

"Probably I should have stayed on for supper, but I couldn't; I should have choked. As it was, my soul was curdling. Another ten minutes and I should have jumped down on the lawn and run round the house on all fours, snapping and foaming at the mouth, and have wound up by 'biting old Blinky."

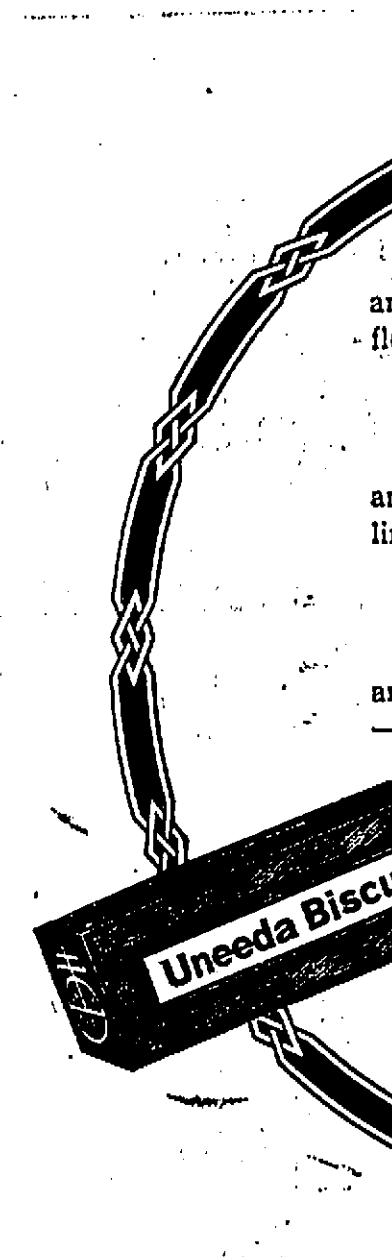

The worst of it all is I know I'm ungrateful; I know they mean well, but why is it that people who mean well almost invariably grate upon your sensibilities like the screeching of a slate pencil?

CHAPTER XVI

SUMMER slumbered to its close. A drowsy autumn settled upon the valley. In which its traditional peace seemed but the more profound.

Josie Lockwood announced that she was going away to school in New York for the winter. Pete Willing took the pledge and kept it almost a month. Will Bigelow secured time tables and willingly mapped out his semi-annual contemplated trip to the east—like the others, destined never to come off.

Tracy Tanner went to town for Graham & Duncan. Holland Barnett paid ostentatious attentions to Bess Gabriel, who tolerated him simply because she didn't much like Josie; but, blighted by Josie's supreme indifference, this budding passion drooped and faded by mutual consent of both parties concerned. Angie Tuttle became more completely than ever the orb of Tracy's universe. Duncan walked home with Josie on two week day evenings and twice on Sundays and learned how to play halma and parcheesi. The drug store prospered in moderation. Sothorn & Lee vainly contested its conquering campaign. And Duncan grew thoughtful.

One has more time to think unselfishly in Nashville than in a great city, where there's rarely more time than enough to think of one's own concerns. And Duncan was making time to think about others, notably Betty Graham.

"The girl was, as usual, shy, reticent, reserved. She kept her thoughts to herself, sharing the most intimate not even with old Sam, who would talk. But Duncan divined that she was unhappy."

He saw her go and come, a wistful shadow on the borders of his occupations, self-contained, a little timid, but at the same time brave in her own quiet, uncomplaining fashion. And the distant look in those soft eyes he divined to be one of longing for that which she might not possess—the advantages that other girls had, socially and educationally; the pleasures they received, the thousand and one slight things that make existence life for a woman. He saw her drooping insensibly day by day, growing a little paler, a shade more aloof and listless. And he became infinitely concerned for her.

He told himself he had solved the problem of her disease, but its remedy remained beyond his reach. The business was doing very well indeed, but it was still young and must be subjected to as few financial drains as possible. As it ran there was an income sufficient to board, lodge and clothe the three of them, maintain the credit of the partnership and now and again admit of a slight but advantageous addition to the stock of fixtures. Things would certainly be better in the course of time, but—

It came to pass that he left the store early one evening, excusing himself on the plea of some slight indisposition, and lost himself for the space of two hours.

ELECTRICITY VERSUS STEAM

Inventors Have Much to Accomplish Before Motor Generally Displaces the Engine.

The electrification of steam railroads is steadily becoming a nearer possibility, although the inventors have yet much to accomplish before the motor generally displaces the engine. The opening wedge comes in the form of electrification of terminals in the largest cities, where conditions of heavy passenger traffic prevail and where the greatest objection is made to the smoke nuisance, says H. H. Windsor in Popular Mechanics. Progress along these lines has been made in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, and other large cities are likely to follow in the next few years.

The railroads claim that substitution of electricity for steam out on the main lines would involve prohibitive losses by making junk of millions of dollars' worth of steam locomotives. This, however, is misleading and far from true, for during the several years necessarily consumed in changing over, say, 1,000 miles of trunk line, the future would be taken into consideration.

As fast as the steam locomotives on one division were released they would be transferred to other divisions to take the place of workhorses there, and at last there would be branch lines of their own and smaller roads which would absorb a great part of what motive power remained at the finish. There would be some direct loss, and some indirect, such as placing on branch lines heavier and faster locomotives than the business required; but the loss from this item would be only a fraction of the whole.

There would be other millions of dollars, now invested in locomotive repair shops, thrown out of use, but this would bring its own compensation, for the electric locomotive goes to the shop only two or three times a year, where the steam locomotive must be overhauled constantly. Moreover, the cost of repairs to the electric machine is insignificant compared to the cost of maintenance of the steam locomotive.

The elimination of smoke, cinders and sparks will contribute to the comfort and luxury of long-distance travel quite as much as did the air brake when it displaced the hand brake.

Wireless Telephone on Trains.

At last the modern business man can transact his business while aboard a railroad train. Recently a young inventor, Henry Von Kremer, applying the principle of wireless telephonic communication, succeeded in carrying on a conversation from a train going at a rate of 40 miles an hour, with a signal house miles down the track.

This feat was accomplished on the Brighton railway in England. Two lines of wire were laid along the track, one telephone apparatus was installed in the signal house and another was set up in the baggage car. Von Kremer, on the train, dictated several telegrams to the man in the signal house.

Mr. Von Kremer's invention is not a new one, but is said to be an improvement over other apparatus, since it does away with all contact with the wires, the impulse "jumping" the distance of 18 inches between the car bottom and the roadbed. His greatest difficulty was overcoming the induction of the nearby telegraph and telephone wires. He succeeded in doing this by suspending a loop of wire about the car in which his telephone was stationed, thus cutting off all interfering outside currents. It is believed the system can be extended any length.

ENDS MISERY FROM INDIGESTION OR A SICK, SOUR, GASSY STOMACH

A little Diaphepsin makes your out-of-order stomach feel fine in five minutes.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from indigestion, dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diaphepsin.

If your stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help it to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a reinforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak stomachs should take a little Diaphepsin occasionally, and there will be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, sour risings, gas on stomach or belching of undigested food, headaches, dizziness or sick stomach, and, besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms arising from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved in five minutes after taking a little Diaphepsin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent case of Diaphepsin and now, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

Females Line Three Generations on stage—Patti Rosa.

"Like father, like son," is a familiar quotation of ancient lineage, but it is not often that one hears of three generations of the female line following the same profession. The unusual occurrence is happily illustrated in the case of Patti Rosa, leading support with the Lyman Twins this season.

The Greatest Business.

He is great who confers the most benefits. He is base—and that is the one base thing in the universe—to receive favors and render none.—Emerson.

Madman at Throttle.

An exciting adventure with a mad engine driver on a milk train occurred recently, in which a disastrous collision was averted. When his condition was discovered the train was travelling 60 miles an hour with another train carrying 400 passengers only a few hundred yards ahead. Both were bound from Albany to New York. The conductor of the milk train, who noticed that instead of going at ten miles an hour the train was travelling seven times as fast, climbed into the tender and discovered that the throttle was wide open and that the driver was lying on the floor of the cab with blood flowing from a wound in the side of his head. The conductor and the fireman tried to reach the throttle, when the wounded man sprang to his feet and fought furiously to frustrate their plan. For five minutes the extraordinary struggle proceeded. The driver was only overcome when the danger of a collision with the crowded train was imminent.
